$500,000 Skyjack Ransom Found...

SALT LAKE CITY. April 10 later, after being in command for (UPI).—The FBI today announced the seizure of $499.970 from flat wastes near Provo. A masthe home of the sky-diving ex-GI held for the hijacking Friday of a United Air Lines jetliner-s.skyjacking that involved a half-million-dollar ransom.

The disclosure came to a report submitted by the FBI to a U.S. magistrate on the results of a search yesterday of the Provo, Utah, home of Richard Floyd Mc-Coy jr., 29, a Victnam war veteran majoring in law enforcement at Brigham Young University.

Agents dug no Mr. McCoy's backyard during the search, but the money was found in a box taken from his brick home. Among other items reported setz-

B-52s Bomb in North First Time Since '67

By Fox Butterfield

SAIGON, April 10 (NYT) .-B-52 heavy bombers have begun bombing North Vietnam for the first time in 4 1/2 years, the U.S. command announced today in

The command, which refused to disclose how many of the bombers were involved or when the raids began, said that they were heing made "in response to the Communist invasion across the Demilitarized Zone," which straddles the border between the two Vietnams.

The B-52s, which can carry up to 30 tons of bombs each, were used in 1966 and 1967 to bomh North Vietnam, but only in the area around the northern half of the DMZ and along the passes leading into Laos.

With a speed of 650 miles an hour, the bombers have always been considered vulnerable to eurface-to-air missiles and were kept away from areas where the North Vietnamese concentrated their missile sites.

The decision to send them against North Vietnam now, despite the known large number surface-to-air missiles in thern North Vietnam, is southern North taken here to indicate the seriousness with which the Nixon administration regards the current enemy offensive.

The U.S. command has refused to disclose the targets for the B-52 raids. The command said that the information would be made available only when the "limited-duration strikes completed."

[United Press International reported from Saigon that the B-52s had bombed enemy supply areas on the outskirts of the North Vietnamese coastal city of Vinh. 145 miles north of the DNZ. Winh is North Viet-nam's second major port, after Halphoog.]

The U.S. command also said that fighter-bombers had made nam during the first three days of the raids, from last Thursday through yesterday. Navy A-7 jet fighters have been acknowledged lost in the raids over the North, with one pllot reported rescued and the other missing.

Action in North In ground action in the north, ailled military commanders said that North Vietnam appeared to bave suffered a serious setback in its cirive into Quang Tri Province, as a battlefield count reportedly showed that the enemy had lost more than 1,000 soldiers and 20 tanks in the renewed offensive west of Quang Tri city resterday.

The only new battle reported in the area was a brief North Vietnemese assault on a bridge on the northern outskirts of Quang Tri city, which was rerangers and U.S. naval gunfire. Intensive artillery fire by both

Jenkins Quits His Labor Post Over Party's Anti-EEC Policy

(Continued from Page 1) Common Market negotiator in the last Labor government, was the spoke:man oo defense. A fourth party leader, Mrs. Shirley Williams, Labor's shadow minister for home affairs, threatened to resign as well. She told Mr. Wilson that she would quit if the party refused to adopt "more constructive" approach to Europe.

Although Mr. Wilson argues that he is not against the princlple of entry but the terms, Mr. Jenkins and his colleagues contradicted him today. They said the party was now moving to-ward opposition to British entry into Europe no matter the terms. Mr. Jenkins, who served as chancelior of the exchequer in Mr. Wilson's government, sald in his letter that the "official majority position of the party, which was only one of opposition to the terms of entry to the EEC, has increasingly become one of oppositioo in principle." Mr. Jenkins's resignation immediately prompted speculatioo that he would challenge Mr. Wilson for the leadership at the party's conference this fall. But Mr. Jenkins told colleagues today that he had no intention of doing so this year. The crisis within the party has been simmering for months as members of the "Jenkins group" found growing difficulty in swallowing their European principles to vote with their own party against the Common Market legislation now before Parliament. They had stayed loyal until now on the theory that they stood a better chance of reversing the party's position by remaining within the leader-

The turning point for the Jenkins group came on March 29, when the shadow cabinet voted to support an amendment by anti-Market Conservatives calling for a consultative referendum nn British entry. The decision was a reversal of a previous leadership decision taken just two weeks

Moreover, the vote also represented a complete turnaround of Labor party policy set at the party's conference last October. when the idea of a referendum on the Market was rejected by an

Mr. Jenkins noted that the impetus for a referendum gained ground after President Georges Pompidnu scheduled a "highly self-interested referendum" to test nf the European Community. WASHINGTON, April 10 (WP). to lend some credence to this as--The International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., accused of maneuvering to prevent the 1970 election of Chilean President Salvador Allende, turned down a series of proposals by the Chilean government to buy the ITT property it sought to nationalize.

Chilean officials feel that iTT preferred to collect its U.S. government expropriation insurance, This would have brought the company more prompt—and possibly greater—compensation for its property. . .

Either way, however, ITT would get out with a good portion of its investment.

If ITT can negotiate a deal with the Allende regime, Chile pays all-or part of the bill. If not, a U.S. government agency must cover the insured part of ITT's investment, which ITT claims is $108.5 million.

Records of the negotiations, made available to The Washington Post, show that the fact that TTT's investment is insured by the government strongly affected the company's position during its discussions with Chile.

Expropriation insurance was corporations to supplement U.S. aid programs by putting money in the less developed countries.

Instruments of Policy Private corporations in this way become instruments of U.S. government policy to the extent that tha government can-by granting or withholding insurance—in-fluence where private funds are invested. The insurance in turn can encourage large multinational companies to feel a sense of partnership with the government, and as a result come to expect

U.S. protection of their interests. . In Chile, ITT is taking the position that the Allende government, by appointing an interventor to run Chitelco, the Chilean telephone company, has effectively expropriated ITT's interests. ITT has filed a claim to collect its insurance.

The Chilean government, on the other hand, insists that the appointment of an interventor in no way constituted a denial of ITT ownership and that it has sought, through lengthy negotiations, to purchase TTT's 70 percent interest in Chiltelco. It has proposed that independent experts determine the value of ITT's holdings to establish a fair

States Split on Residence Ballot Requirements

U.S. Memo on Voting Rights Confuses Americans Abroad

Police See Gallo Retaliation

By James Goldsborough

PARIS, April 10 (IHT).-The U.S. Justice Department has recently put out a memorandum that is confusing Americans abroad about their right to vote in U.S. elections.

This memorandum, entitled Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1970," was the basis for a misleading report published by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and widely distributed in foreign countries. It stated that the 1970 act had enfranchised the estimated two million American civilians abroad who have been unable to vote because of restrictive state requirements.

Because of the confused situation, the Paris-based Bipartisan Committee on Absentee Voting has asked the Justice Department for its interpretation of the 1970 act, but has received no answer. To clarify the matter, the committee has begun polling the attorneys general of the 50 states.

About half tha states have replied so far and are about equally divided in their interpretation of how the law affected American voters abroad. What seems clear is that the 1970 act clarified nothing for voters abroad. And the Justice Department's interpretation of was so vague that the U.S. Chamber of Commerce was misled into believing that the act had enfranchised voters abroad, which it has not done.

1965 Act Amended The 1970 act, which amended the Voting Rights Act of 1965, was intended specifically to regulate state voting restrictions in presidential elections. To this end, Congress lowered the voting age to 18 years, abolished state literacy and other tests and taxes and limited state residence requirements to a maximum of 30 days. Only last month the Supreme Court extended the meaning of the act lengthy state residence requirements in state and local elections, too.

The question for Americans overseas is whether the legis-lation on residence requirements neant that the states are now obliged to allow them to vote while abroad.

Section 202 of the amended act reads, "Each state must provide that any otherwise qualified person who expects to be away from his election district on election day may vote by absentee ballot. Accordingly, state laws which restrict availability of absentee ballots to certain classes of citizens or persons absent for particular reasons may not be enforced with respect to voting for president and vice-president." The key to the controversy is the phrase "any otherwise qualified person." For while the act limits residence requirements, it does not eliminate them, and the states are left free to say has given up his residence.

that a qualified voter must at least reside in the state and that by leaving the country he The hipartisan committee re-Brooklyn Gang Figure Slain;

Gallo was shot and killed at 5:30 a.m. Friday in Umberto's Clam House in lower Manhattan. His killer was described as a stocky man in his early forties with dark hair and brown eyes. Police speculation about Gallo's death included the possibility that be was killed in retaliation for the shooting last June of Joe Colombo, leader of a gangland family that had often clashed with Gallo over territorial rights

"Their reasoning," says Richard H. Moore, chairman of the Democratic Committee in France, "is that if you don't have a fixed address, then you have no residence, and without a residence you cannot vote." There is, however, considerable support for an opposing viewpoint, namely that the essence of the 1970 act was to prevent states from depriving citizens of their citizenship—that is, their right to vote through depriving them of their residence. This viewpoint holds unconstitutional situation. The more liberal interpretation of the 1970 act has been most vociferously supported by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R., Ariz. Mr. Goldwater wrote a long brief citing constitutional cases back to McCulloch vs. Maryland in 1819, and stating that Congress should write a law giving civilians overseas the same rights as the military. The election code states that, "The domicile of a person is not affected by the mere fact that be has entered the military or naval service of his country. . . His residence or domicile is a ques-

Congress to clarify, For while Congress now has regulated residence requirements for those Americans within the states, and the Supreme Court has declared state durational requirements unconstitutional, residence restrictions are stil' maintained for Americans overseas, at least for civilians. This would appear to violate the 14th Amendment, which guarantees equal protection of the laws.

Eban Says Uganda's Demands Guyana to Get Caused Break in Relations

Israel did not respond to certain requests made by President Ioi Amin of Uganda for the supply of military equipment when it million." He expressed the hope seemed to Israel that these requests were either "beyond the reasonable economic capacity of Uganda or beyond its reasonable defensive needs." This was revealed today by Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban,

Mr. Eban's statements, during a press conference here, were the first Israeli official's pronouncement on Uganda since the relations between Israel and Uganda began to deteriorate in the middle of February. Mr. Eban hinted that this refusal, plus the generous aid offers to Uganda from "affluent Arab states," probably brought about Israel's downfall in Uganda, which ended last week with the complete breaking off of relations and the departure of the last Israeli citizens from Kampala.

Until recently, there were more than 500 Israelis in Uganda. About 70 of them were training the Uganda Air Force, its parachutists, armored corps and artiliery. The rest were civilian advisors and instructors. personnel of Israeli commercial firms and members of their fami-

"We have contractual rights and Uganda bas its contractual obligations," Mr. Eban said, noting that Uganda should be careful about its credit status on the international financial market.

Mr. Eban refused to divulge which Ugandan requests for the supply of military equipment were turned down. It was learned here, from authoritative sources, that these requests included sophisticated jet fighter-bombers, including American-made Sky-

Even after breaking the long self-imposed silence, Mr. Eban chose his words carefully and refrained from blaming the Ugandan president for the hasty ex-pulsion of the Israelis.

"There was nothing in the rela-tionship between Uganda and Israel to justify the bizarre accusations which President Amin has been proclaiming against Israel since the middle of February." Mr. Eban said.

He was referring to statements made by spokesmen in Kampala charging that the Israelis were involved in "subversive acts" in

$26-Million Chinese Loan

Sum Equals Third of '65-71 Foreign Aid

GEORGETOWN, Guyana, April 10 (NYT). - Guyana yesterday signed a technical assistance agreement with Chinz under which it will receive an interestfree loan of $26 million over the five-year period beginning in July, Guyana will specify projects for which the loan is to be used. It has promised to repay the money over 30 years, with a 10year moratorium.

Prime Minister Forbes Burnham announced the loan in an address at the annual meeting of the governmental party, the People's National Congress. The meeting was attended by representatives of the United States, Britain, Canada, India, Venezuela, West Germany, Brazil, Colombia and Trinidad, with observers from Yugoslavia and Tanzania.

Mr. Burnham said that be-1965 and 1971 Guyana recelved foreign aid totaling more than $70 million, principally from the United States, Britain, Canada, the World Bank and United Nations agencies. He added that in the same period Guyana had contributed $54 million from its OWN resources.

Hands-Off Policy

The prime minister, whose gov-ernment nationalized the Canadian-owned Demerarra Bauxite Co. last July, said: "The government does not propose to indulge in expropriation and it is not part of our plen to nationalize branches of foreign banks."

Foreign banks operating here are the Chase Manhattan, the Royal Bank of Canada and Bank of Nova Scotia, Barclays Bank International of Britain and the Bank of Baroda, India.

Mr. Burnham said that Guyana wanted to attract foreign investment. "We give a guarantee against confiscation." he said. We are prepared to offer reasonable facilities and incentives.

Liberator's Body Sent to Rio

Long-Dead Monarch Is Used To Firm Lisbon-Brazil Ties

LISBON, April 10.—The Por-tuguese Republic, in a goodwill gesture that could prove beneficial politically, today sent to the republic of Brazil the body of Emperor Dom Pedro I of Brazil, who also was King Dom Pedro IV of Portugal.

The transfer of the body of the monarch, who died in 1834, is intended to mark the 150th anniversary of Brazil's independence from Portugal, which Dom Pedro proclaimed in revolt against his father, King Joso of Portugal, Dom Pedro was then proclaimed emperer of the breakaway state. Later, after his father's death, Dom Pedro returned here and wrested the throne from a younger brother, to rule both nations until his death in 1834.

Portugal sent the body off today with top-level pageantry, involv-ing the nation's president, Adm. Americo Rodrigues Tomaz, who will accompany the royal remains to Rio de Janeiro; Premier Marcello Caetano; Princess Maria Teresa d'Orléans e Braganza, representing the last Portuguese royal house, and several hundred other notables, including diplomatic representatives.

Today's caremonies began with a mass conducted by Lisbon's Patriarch Antonio Ribeiro. Then, church dignitaries, Premier Caetano and descendants of the Portuguese and Brazilian royal families attended the private opening of the coffin to verify Dom Pedro's remains.

Put Aboard Ship

The coffin was placed on a gun carriage, covered with a royal velvet pall fringed in gold and embroidered with the royal arms. Followed by about 200 on foot, and escorted by the National Republican Guard, the gun carriage was rolled through the Alfama, Lisbon's oldest quarter, to a quay. There four Brazilian and four Portuguese marines put it atop a catafalque on the liner Funchal, temporarily commissioned as a Portuguese Navy ship for the transatlantic crossing.

The procession of the body and the attending royalty and dignitaries through the Alfama today seemed a matter of small curiosity to Portuguese passersby. Pedes-trians would pause, look for a moment and then go on about their business and other daily

But Portugal hopes the transfer of Dom Pedro to the country he founded will bring diplomatic rewards to this old mother country. Feeling more and more isolated in world diplomacy, Portugal hopes for a strengthening of ties with Brazil, which, with 100 million inhabitants and many untapped resources, is the largest and potentially richest Portuguese-speaking nation. The two nations have just concluded a pact conferring reciprocal rights on each other's citizens.

Commonwealth Idea

A long-range possibility is Brazil's inclusion in a Portuguese commonwealth, which would include, perhaps, Portugal's African holdings. Now called overseas provinces, they would be elevated to the status of Portuguese states under legislation being pushed by all, reportedly, been shot and his government in Zanzibar remains apparently unshaken. If the latter is true, it must be assumed that his methods of integration in the island portion of Tanzania also remain. These are, to say the least, unusual: a kind of compulsory miscegenation. Girls from a Persian colony of long standing in Zanzibar have heen married off to Zanzibari officials, and Arabs and Indians were ordered to intermarry with Africans or face deportation,

It could be argued that this is no worse than the miscegenation, usually without benefit of clergy, that followed white imperialism around the world, and that its intellectual base was not less respectable than the severe laws against racial intermingling in Sooth Africa or the han on interracial marriages in a number of American states before they were overturned by courts or more enlightened legislation. But it is surely no better, especially since Sheikh Karume professed to believe that only blacks or other non-whites could be true Tanzan-

Be that as it may, Sheikh Karome's hrusque methods with the most intimate of interpersonal relationships form a kind of reductlo ad absurdum of the problem of securing racial integration by government pressure. This is the problem that the United States is encountering in a number of areas of rather more practical importance.

Before World War II. the American black was discriminated against, both legally and hy social pressure, in virtually every fieldeducation, voting, housing, johs, social and personal relations. Beginnings were made, during the war and after, to eliminate some of the crassest of these discriminations, in military service and in forbidding the barring of hlacks from eating places and housing and jobs. The U.S. Supreme Court moved

The klilers of Sheikh Aheld Karume have to remove official discrimination in education and at the voting hooths and, after a struggle, these steps were accepted by the states and Congress

But it is one thing to assert that the black man, the red man, the Puerto Rican and the Chicano have equal rights in the American community. It is quite another to assure those rights. Negative action against cases of discrimination is easier than positive action to insure integration.

Nearly all the current argument over racial problems in the United States today revolves about such positive measures. No black child can be forbidden by law or community regulation from attending a school with a white child, simply because one is black, the other white. But housing patterns work against the integration of the schools-therefore the row about busing. Laws forhid blacks from heing barred from houses in white neighborhoods-bot the lower economic status of the blacks does not make it possible for them to rent or huy in white neighborhoods on any large scale. So public housing, in such localities, available to blacks, causes friction.

And on the basic economic front, it is extremely difficolt to prove in court that a black man is refused a job, or denled promotion, hecause of color. So quota systems are heing set up in various industries (including the academic) and there is much argument that this is simply racialism in reverse; that to require a certain number of positions be opened to racial minorities is as had as quotas limiting the number of johs available to them.

These arguments represent discord—hut they also represent progress. One cannot conceive of such sobjects being even discussed a generation ago. Prohably they will seem ludicrous a generation hence. But in the meanwhile they trouble many, and agitate the state.

The Bombing

In his three years in the White House, Mr. Nixon has dropped more bombs by the ton in Indochina, some three million tons, than Lyndon Johnson did in his five years. If you count the 500-pounders and the white phosphorous and the 7 1/2-ton "Cheesehurgers" and all the rest, Mr. Nixon has dropped more than one ton of bombs a minute during every single minute of his administration. He has hecome-here's a "first" for you—the man who has assembled and let loose more devastation from the sky than anyone else in the history of creation; all this, mind you, while "winding down" the war.

Yet in the past week North Vietnam has been able to send some tens of thousands of troops, with heavy artillery and armor and anti-aircraft and even SAMs, across the Demilitarized Zone into South Vietnam; It has an estimated 20,000 troops pushing off from the Camhodian border near Salgon; it is conducting other military operations in the Mekong Delta and elsewhere. Leaving aside the civilian and environmental damages, one is surely entitled to ask just what military purpose has been served by this torrentuous rain of explosives from the sky?

An obvious reply is, of course, that political constraints have prevented Mr. Nixon from bombing North Vietnam proper in the style to which his predecessor had become accustomed. Instead he has had to do most of his bomhing elsewhere in Indochina, and he could not focus the daily devastation on the buildup above the DMZ. Yet the whole Johnson record indicates that although bombing raises Hanol's costs, Hanol is prepared to pay those costs. Even the heavy unconstrained bombing on the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos has not kept North Vietnam from mostering the threat it now poses in Cambodia opposite Salgon and in the Delta.

Moreover, Mr. Nixon has done much hombing in North Vietnam. Though Mr. Johnson ended regular daily attacks on the North in 1968, sortles by the thousands have been authorized by Mr. Nixon in the name of "protective reaction" against Vietnamese efforts to track or down American planes flying reconnaissance missions over the North and interdiction missions over Laos. Some of these "limited-duration protective-reaction strikes" have gone on for a week or

President Nixon's general hombing rationale, as restated by the American command in Saigon just the other day, has been "to help protect the lives of the diminishing U.S. forces in South Vietnam." Yet virtually none of the remaining Americans are in a combat role (except in the air) or in a comhat zone: Their lives are not threatened. Asked about the current raids, Adm. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, candidly avoided the customary misleading bows to "protective reaction" and "protecting American boys." The bombing will continue, he sald, "so long as the hattle that is currently going is supported with resources from North Vietnam . . . as long as there are valid military targets supporting this operation." Defense Secretary Laird confirmed the point. For at least the span of "this operation." then, we are back essentially to the Johnson policy of regular daily attacks on North Vletnam. A record 500 tactical aircraft and a record 100 B-52s are on the job; a record fifth carrier is being readied to steam into the waters off Vietnam. The ranks of American POWs are again heing

In sum, having established himself as the greatest bomber of all time, having surpassed Lyndon Johnson in havoc wrought to the land if not also to the people of Indochina, having failed nonetheless to break the will of Hanoi or to deter its largest offensive since Dien Bien Phu, and having addicted Salgon more than ever to a reliance on American air power even while proclaiming ever greater success for "Vletnamization"having done all this, Mr. Nixon is bombing still more, while the Russians, undeterred, are providing ever heavier firepower, in the form of artillery and SAM missiles, to their North Vietnamese allies. In what conceivable sense can this be described as "winding down"-let alone ending-the war? THE WASHINGTON POST.

International Opinion

Offensive in Vietnam

The Communist offensive strengthens the Soviet position before Mr. Nixon's arrival in Moscow. In all the conversations one can have with Soviet leaders about the prospects for Mr. Nixon's visit to Russia, the Vietnam problem is the topic that gives rise to the firmest, most intransigent positions.

Moscow doubtless knows that pressures on the North Vietnamese to make them accept some compromise would be fruitless. Doubtless also, the Russlans feel even more interdependent with Hanol since this permits them to contrast their own attitude with that of the Chinese, who received Mr. Nixon while bombs were poured on Vietnam. But It also looks very much as if this firm attitude was part of the preparation of their own conversations with Mr. Nixon.

The Forgotten Victims

By Anthony Lewis

ONDON. - President Nixon's I didn't get a straight answer to response to the Communist offensive in Vietnam, his escalation of air and naval bombardment, has special and agonizing meaning for one group of people; the wives and families of American prisoners.

More than anyone else, they must realize that the Nixon policy now offers no realistic hope of an end to American military in-Volvement in Indochins. And in all likelihood that means no end to the captivity of their husbands, sons, brothers and fathers.

The feelings of the wives and families are likely to have political significance as the year 1972 goes on. Nixon, recognizing their potential as a focus of anti-war emotions, has taken great care with the families: His aides have cultivated them, and he himself made a surprise appearance at the last meeting of their organization. But resentment of the President-a feeling that he has defaulted on a pledge to get the men out-is now growing. The President's credibility among the prisoners' families was falling before the latest military turn in Vietnam. An example of that trend can be seen in Mrs. Audrey Craner, whose husband, Lt. Col. Robert Roger Craner, was shot down over North Vietnam on Dec, 20, 1967. She has had one brief letter from him since then, and she does not know whether any of her letters to him have got through.

Mrs. Craner is English-born. and she struggles in a very English way to contain her anguish. She has not wanted her husband's plight to be caught up in politics; she has resisted those among the families who favor politicizing the prisoners issue. But now, painfully, her words are changing.

"Mr. Nixon keeps saving the war will not be an issue in the election," Mrs. Craner said a while ago, "but I can't believe that. He came in on a promise to end the war. He made clear in his last [January] speech how difficult that is, but he made the

"I assume that Mr. Nixon means what he says when he says he will be responsible for the prisoners, so he must expect us to hold him responsible. If he gets those men out, I'll be glad to back him in the election. I'm sorry to be so selfish, but ...

Mrs. Craner appreciates the argument for continuing American effort to keep the government of Nguyen Van Thieu in power in Saigon. She says that her husband is a career officer who understood the risk of war and would have thought his captivity a burden to be borne for the sake of American political objectives. But then she says: 'That's what I believe he would have said five years ago, but now I don't know."

Others Less Cautious

Others among the prisoners' families are much less cautious than Mrs. Craner, much more politically committed. An example in Washington, D.C., is Sheila Cronin, whose brother was shot down on Jan. 13, 1967. He is Navy Lt. Comdr. Michael P.

Miss Cronin and others are working in their spare time to put pressure on Nixon by supporting candidates who would end the war and get the prisoners nome. They expect to go to both national conventions.

When the President spoke in January aboot the secret peace Miss Cronin said, dign't understand a lot of things. We went to the White House and spoke with a staff aide from the National Security Council, I asked him a lot of questions, and ocrats who are most conspicuous

But that was fiction. The United a single one. At the end he told States has never disclosed having me that I should give their peace made any such proposal for an plan 10 months-which would keep us quiet long enough to get

Nixon re-elected." One episode played a significant part in the politicizing of Sheila Cronin. That was what she calls the President's "misrepresentation of the facts" in his television interview with Dan Rather of CBS last Jan. 2.

In that interview the President said flatly that the United States had offered the North Vietnamese "the deal of saying if we set a deadline" for total withdrawal, "then they will give us back our POWs." The North Vietnamese, he said, had "totally rejected" this proposal-"a very cruel action even exchange-total withdrawal in return for the prisoners-even in the secret talks. There is certainly no assurance that the other side would have accepted the idea. They might have last summer, before Thieu's re-election; they might not. But there has never been any sign of willingness on Nixon's part to make such a deal, at least to Even by our degraded standards of political truthfulness, such a calculated misrepresentation was, and is, staggering. The wives and families are not likely to forget it-or, if they have any access to the public conscience, to let the critical in what emerges as a Democratic contest between George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey. It will not be insignificant in testing the resources of Richard Nixon. Already it has shattered the confidence of those few who believed that the Peking summit would bring instant benefits in Indochina.

George McGovern, though be voted for the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, began to oppose the war about as soon as anyone. That position is overwhelmingly popular among the intellectuals, and grudgingly popular among the people, who have lost any appetite they had for the Vietnam war.

On the other hand, it has been a long time since there was any public speculation on what might happen if the North Vietnamese military successfully invaded the South, For a period it was generally assumed that this could not happen because the American military would prevent it. Subsequently, it was assumed that this would not happen because the South Vietnamese military were now strong enough to prevent it, Now it is happenand public opinion on the issue has not crystallized. It is very possible that the crisis will finally divide McGovern and Humphrey.

Call for Bombing

Hours after the returns from Wisconsin came in, three Democratic candidates had expressed themselves as calling on the United States to bomb North Vietnam military bases whence the invasion issues. They were Scoop Jackson, George Wallace and Hubert Humphrey, Mc-Govern (at this writing) has not been heard from, and no donot he struggles over the dilemma.

If he joins his confederates and calls for U.S. intervention. he will instantly lose favor with his pacifist supporters. If he calls on the United States to do nothing except perhaps to protect our own men in the event that they should become involved (and this is his likeliest line), he will solidly expose himself in the event that what follows should be catastrophic.

A collapse of the South Vietnamese position as a result of pressure from isolationist-pacifists could very well reawaken American pride, propelling the candldate who declared himself on the side of firmness and stability. Wallace preeminently occuples that position among the Dem-

NEW YORK.—The North Viet-nam offensive is likely to be course is identified with the hawks. But Humphrey, if he is looking for an issue to take with McGovern, could very well find it in the next few days.

Meanwhile, Richard Nixon has got to do a lot of talking. If he vigorously resumes the war, he will have to do it without tha use of the American fighting man-that is flatly excluded. This means air power,

And this raises the question whether air power is sufficient to stay the enemy's infantry. It has been the lazy assumption, all along, that to the extent that the South Vietnamese military is in-sufficient to do the job, the U.S. Air Force will come along with the balance of power. .

Role of B-52s

But the use of B-52s to bomb supply lines has not proved sufficient. Already there is talk of decisive bombing of the sources of North Vietnamese supplies. This is something even Lyndon Johnson hesitated to do. His hesitation may prove to have been strategically fatal, but it wasn't tactically fatal because during the period in question the U.S. military was on the ground. Now that it is not, we come closer to the crucial question which Richard Nixon will have to answer in the next few hours with or without the support of the individual Democratic candi-

Approximately four years ago we began formally exploring the diplomatic alternative suggested by Sen. McGovern and others. We went to Paris, having extracted a pledge from the North Vietnamese to observe the DMZ. Needless to say they did not observe that pledge. A few years later we went to Peking, obviously hoping to get support there. We didn't. We are reduced to the military. It used to be accepted as commonplace that there would be a great national revulsion if, after all this effort, the North Vietnamese proceeded merely to take over South Vietnam. One hasn't heard much about that in the past year or so, and it may well be that the reflexes of the country are deadened after the pounding they took in the late 1980s and in 1970. But they may be latently there, and Hubert Humphrey is no doubt taxing himself to discover whether that is so. By appealing to them, he may establish that separation between himself and George Mc-Govern which could conclude the primary contests in his fayor.

Wider Bands: An Aid To Adjusting Currency will

the major non-Communist countries made the now-famous "Smithsonian Accord" of Dec. 18 about international monetary arrangements, which President Nixon hailed as "the most significant monetary agreement in the history of the world," but the private financial community in the United States and abroad has already been asking whether the agreement will break down.

In the Smithsonian Accord, the major countries realigned the prices at which their currencles exchange for each other in the foreign-emhange markets, set-ting new "parities" or "central rates" that made the dollar cheaper in relation to nearly all other major currencies, but cheapening it by different amounts in relation to different currencles and agreeing to allow the actual prices of their currencies to vary within a widened band of 2 1/4 percent on either side of these parities or central

It was widely expected that the realignment of exchange rates would be followed by a return to the United States of the vast amounts of capital that had been transferred to Europe and Japan during 1971 in the expectation that the dollar would fall in the foreign-exchange markets, For some weeks after the agreement, the price of the dollar remained above its new central rate in relation to most currencies, but apparently this fact did not resuit from any large return flow of such capital; in fact, the return flow was widely regarded as disappointingly small,

Fall of Dollar

Partly because people took this as evidence that the dollar was weak (or that others regarded it as weak) and partly because interest rates on short-term lending were much lower in the United States than in Europe, the dollar fell to and below its new central rate against most other major currencies.

Early in February. Robert V. Roosa, former Under Secretary of the Treasury, strongly criti-cized American monetary policy for not following what he called the "traditional" central banking policy of moving, "at least for a time," toward tighter money after a currency devaluation. That criticism is to some degree misplaced.

For one thing, it is questionsable whether it really is traditional central bank policy to tighten money following a devaluation; although monetary policy is kept tight when a coun-try is fighting to avoid devaluation, it is generally relaxed when the fight is given up. But whether U.S. policy breaks with tradition is a trivial question; the significant questions are whether American policy has been correct under the circumstances and, if it has erred, whether the error has been serious.

Below Capacity

On this score, the first thing to remember is that the U.S. economy was operating in the fourth quarter of 1971 at 6 1/2 percent below its estimated practical capacity, thereby foregoing output at the rate of about $75 billion a year. In this situation, an easy money policy is appropriate and, while the important objective of such a policy should be to get long-term interest rates down, that can hardly be done without expanding the money supply and, in the process, reduc-ing short-term interest rates, an incidental effect that is helpful in itself

It should also be recognized that the recent devaluation of the dollar, unlike virtually all past devaluations of major currencies. did not anchor it (or other currencies) to a relatively fixed relation to other currencies but de-liberately placed it (and other currencies) within a broad band. This widening of the band was designed to accomplish two pur-

One is to permit larger differences in short-term interest rates and other elements of credit policy between countries than was possible with the former much parrower bands so that countries could make greater use of monetary policy for domestic purposes. The United States was taking advantage of the opportunity that the widened band was intended to provide.

The other purpose of the widened band is to allow limited movements of exchanga rates in order to help bring balances of payments into adjustment

Expansionist Policy Since the price of the dollar, for several weeks after the Smithsmian Agreement, was at or above the mid-point of the

NEW YORK - Only three permitted range in relation to months have elapsed since most of the major currencies the most of the major currencies, the expansionist monetary policy not only suited the needs of the domestic economy but also encouraged people to postpone returning their capital to the United States, thereby tending to depress the dollar toward the lower limit of the permitted

> This encourages the very long. run improvement in the United States balance of payments that we seek and that foreign countries profess to want.

It is true that some foreign countries appear unwilling to see their own trada surplus reduced and want to see the U. S. pay. ments position improved mainly by cutting the flow of U.S. capi tal abroad rather than by restor. ing large U.S. surpluses from But by agreeing to, and in some cases insisting on, a reduction in the price of the dollar, they sup. ported or at least acquiesced in our objective of improving the U.S. balance in goods and ser-

Thus, American monetary policy has not only been consistent with the purposes of the new arrangements but also has tended to promote the attainment of U.S. domestic and international economic objectives, both of which most foreign countries also support.

If any criticism could be made of American central banking policy during the period since the Smithsonian Accord, it would have to be that short-term interest rates need not have been pushed or allowed to fall so low. that the anthorities should instead, have placed more downward pressure on long-term interest rates and less on shortterm rates.

But the case made against U. S. low short-term rates on international grounds, which is only that with higher shortterm rates more capital would United States, wholly igneres the point that higher rates, by keeping the foreign-exchange value of the dollar well above its lower limit, would have impeded the longer-run forces through which devaluation operates to reduce balance-of-payments deficits.

Return Flow

The critics would delay these longer rum and more basic adjustments in the American payments position in order to obtain the transitory henefit of an earlier return flow of capital. Even the most dollar-averse iceign central bankers can hardly be so short-sighted as to prefer an immediate and rapid reduction of their dollar holdings that postpones or slows the process of their longer run diminution. If any are so eager, they might reduce the difference between short-term interest rates in the United: States and their own money markets by taking steps to reduce their own rates. If that policy-or anything else raises the dollar above its lower limit, they could take advantage of the new policy instrument created by the widening of margins and sell dollars, thereby encouraging capital to return to the United States without impeding or delaying the more fundamental adjustment of trade flows, and incidentally reducing their unwanted holdings of dollars at the same time. But apparently the new flexibility of exchange rates has not been arcompanied by an equal flexibility of mind, for the availability of a new policy instrument appears to have gone unrecognized.

—Richard Dudman of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, who had been present at the Peking baoquet, and Peter Kalischer of CBS News, an old China hand.

The two Hong Kong chefe of the Pagoda Restaurant had been given the six hours required advanced notice. The table had a festive note. The napkins in the glasses had been pleated into a 10-fold pleated fan. They were pretty but not quite up to tha Peking centerpiece which had been a circular plot of greens planted with kumquats.

Kalischer poured a bittle of the coloriess firewater into a saucer-and set a match. It was so alcobolized, it flamed without being previously warmed. The odor was of burning tires.

"To the diminishing exasperations between the American and French peoples," said Kalischer, The Mao-Tai is not an ode to

Buyers Flock to Florence For Ready-to-Wear Shows

By Hebe Dorsey

PLORENCE, April 10 (IET) - Duskin, Basically, American buy-The European ready-to-wear season opened here today with unprecedented press and buyer attendance. This is beginning to look more and more like the good old couture days with the hotels jampacked, the concierges tearing their hair out and lines in front of all the chic restaurants.

The Sala Bianca of the Pitti Palace, where the shows are being held, can normally accommodate 730 people. There are now over 1,000 crowded in there. At that, the organizers have had to turn down over 200 people, both press and buyers, for lack of space. "Next time," a spokesman for the Centro di Firenze per la Moda Italiana said, "we'll have to hold two shows, one for the press and manufacturers, the other for

In a way, even Paris couture designers had to give in. Johnnys-come-lately in the ready-towear picture anyhow, the French were planning to show their ready-to-wear this week (opening with Cardin today). But they found out that they could not call the shots anymore and had to recken with the fact that masses of buyers are in Plorence this week. So they are delaying their showings, opening Thursday with Lanvin and Ricci. As for Cardin, he is showing on Friday, which is smart because a great many people are going on to Rome on Thursday to see Valen-

Saks Fifth Avenue has another large group, There are buyers from Bergdorf Goodman, Bonwit Teller, Bendel's, Magnin, Sakowitz and Nan ers come to Florence for the same reasons that take them to Paris: better quality, exclusivity and bigger mark-ups. But a great many such as Roy Wiltin, presi-dent of Nan Duskin, Philadelphia, and Robert Sakowitz, of the Sakowitz stores in Houston, buy for the whole store and need Florence gifts, accessories, shoes and knits.
Fashion wise, Florence is always worth the trip, according to buy-

The shows opened this morning with the Roman couturiers' readyto-wear which boiled down to watered-down versions of their conture lines. One never expects much news from those At best, they offer-a general indication of the strongest trends for next fall and winter So far, we have pants suits with jackets so long they come closer to being coats, dropped shoulders, dolman sleeves, plenty of flannels and an overall calm and conservative look. There is no retrospective so far except for faint echoes of the Rothschild's Proust ball in some Victorian evening dresses. Titi Brugnoli does a nice job mixing plaids and checks. Ognibene and Zendman have a young, romantic evening look with lots of printed satin skirts and blouses and the girls ponytails caught in satin bows.

Fabiani has good raincoats and a colorful, almost Magyar evening look with the girls' busts caught into red felt corselets. André Laug had good, if over constructed, coats over soft wool voile dresses. Barocco was last this morning and the most charitable thing one can say is "Forget it." The Florence shows should pick up speed tomorrow with the boutique and leather showings and reach their peak Wednesday morning with the knit collections.

Music in France

A Birthday Tribute to Darius Milhaud

By David Stevens

NICE, April 10 (IRT),-Nice gave Darius Milhaud a birthday party over the weekend, making him an honorary citizen and—in its charming Théatre da l'Opéra, a pocket Ia Scala with its back to the Mediterranean staging a triple-bill of his works that included the world premiere of a ballet and the French premiere of a short opera.

The composer, who recently described himself as having been 's member of the avant-garde a hundred years ago," will not actually reach his 80th birthday until September, but no matter. The occasion was not only touching, but rewarding in its musical

The new ballet, "Vendange," is not new in the sense of being a recent work. It dates from 1952, when it was composed for the Paris Opéra, which never performed it, and it remained unperformed and unpublished

But the neglect apparently had nothing to do with the music, and Nice has been rewarded for its initiative with vintage Milhaud. The libretto, drawn by Philippe de Rothschild from one of his own poems, celebrates the eternal life cycle in the mythical carnal human love.
Milhand responded to this

Dionysiac theme with a score for full orchestra that is both characteristic and substantial. A flowing first scene, as life awakens in the subterranean regions of the vine roots, leads to a lively

Arts Agenda

After the current run of Marcel Marceau, the one-bour 6:30 p.m. spot at the Théatre de la Ville in Paris will be taken oy Les Percussions de Strasbourg from April 18 to 22 and by Régine Crespin from April 25 to 29. On April 25, 26 and 27, at 8:30, three concerts are planned that will feature Deszo Ranki and Zoltan Kocsis, the two young Hungarian planists who bad a successful week of appearances at the theater earlier this year. A new scenic version of Handel's bratorio "Belshazzar," in English. will be given its first performence April 13 by the Grand Theatre of Geneva. The production team includes Karl Richter as conductor, Herbert Graf as stage director, Kurt Jooss as choreographer and Annelies Corrodi designer. The cast includes Josephine Barstow, William Cochran, Benjamin Luxon, Peter Lagger and Victor de Narké. Other performances will be April 15, 18, 20, 22 and 25.

Story and music would seem to be rich in choreographic possibilities that were not entirely realized in Tony Fardina's realization, which relied a bit too much on classical clichés. And the Nice production dropped a scene of peasant revelry that might have given the whole more musical and dramatic balance. But the Nice troupe acquitted itself well, particularly the orchestra under Paul Jamin. Liane Dayde and Juan Giuliano beaded the dancers as the Woman and Man, while Jean-nette Jacquet was the Vendangeuse Noire and Thierry Dorado the Faune Rouge, opposing figures of death and fermenting life. Jean Blancon's sets were dominated by gnaried vines and colors that emphasized the vineyard atmosphere.

The two short operas on the program reflected another of Milbaud's many facets-the laconic and mundane, virtually the opposite of the cosmic richness of "Vendange." Yet both and brassy harvest festival, and "Le Pauvre Matelot" and "Fiesta" have something of the life cycle about them too-the version that might be found on a police blot-

> For "Flesta," being seen for the first time in France, Milhaud wrote a kind of wind suite (with the saxophone the most prominent) to accompany the ultra-compressed story of a shipwrecked man in a sun-drenched South American fishing village who is revived by the attentions of an alluring wench, stabbed by ber lover and chucked back into the sea whence he came,

"Flesta" (based on a Boris Vian story) is perhaps too concentrat-ed to be successfully staged, but Léon Ferly had more luck with the better-known, but equally grim "Pauvre Matelot," which at half an bour runs a bit longer than its companion piece.

Here, the literary basis is from Jean Cocteau—a sailor returns home incognito after 15 years and tells his faithful wife of the imminent return of her husband. She matter-of-factly bludgeons him , death in his sleep, thinking thus to acquire the supposed stranger's wealth to help her musically by ostinato rh7thms that recall the sea, and by a delicerate absence of emotional involvement. Andrée Espesito, Hélia T'Hezan Albert Voli and Michel Trempont headed the admirable singing casis, and Jamin and Jean Laplerre shared conducting duties. No one program could show every facet of Milhaod's output, but this one showed some of the prolific composer's range which, as a program note by Cocteau said, "registers the spectacle of the universe, from antiquity to our time, from the temple to tha skyscraper ... a veritable cosmos."

Entertainment in New York-NEW YORK, April 10 (IHT). Lennon and Miss Ono's best

This is how critics of The New York Times rate new films and stage productions: Plays "Misalliance," a revival of the George Bernard Shaw comedy, directed by Gene Feist, at the Roundabout Theater, got a mixed review from Mel Gussow. "Constantly we are aware of the author's chuckling over his own chiding," Gussow reports. And "chiding is about all there ishardly even a good burst of raillery or wit." However, what endures in the play and in this production, according to Gussow, is the character of Tarleton, and Tilli Hugh was Hugh Franklin plays the part with "considerable vigor and grace." It weakens in the "exaggerated playing of tha younger characters," Gussow said. "Nothing else in the world is so powerful "Nothing else in the works come."

as an idea whose time has come."
Victor Hugo

> "There is today a major need for a broad, widely based, active and resilient futures market in currency. Prof. Milton Friedman

You're a multi-national electronics corporation. You've just made a $10 million sale overseas. Your profit on the deal is $300,000. You could wind up losing $150,000.

You're a multi-national oil company. You've just made a $10 million purchase overseas. You could wind up paying $10,450,000.

You're a pretty sophisticated speculator. You keep your eye on the exchange rates. You think the Deutschemark is undervalued. Now you can do something about it.

Of course, the speculator could lose much of his risk capital. The electronics corporation could wind up with a windfall profit of $750,000. The oil company could pay as little as $9,550,000 for its purchase.

The difference is this: of the three examples cited, only the speculator wants that kind of risk. A major corporation does not. The recent agreement to let currencies vary 2.25% above or below official parity has put many international companies in a business they don't want to be in-currency speculation. Changes in currency values interfere with the conduct of dayto-day business and are even more disruptive of long-range planning and pricing.

Speculators - the shock absorbers of futures transactions-have been unable (though certainly not unwilling) to participate. As Professor Milton Friedman has said: "The market needs speculators who are willing to take open positions as well as hedges. The larger the volume of speculative activity, the better the market and the easier it will be for persons involved in foreign trade and investment to hedge at low costs."

There is little donbt that substantial numbers of speculators will be drawn to currency futures. (If a city-dweller, for example, is willing to take the time to study pig crop reports and various other factors affecting frozen pork belly futures, it seems more than likely that he would find a study of the ultimate commodity-money-at least as familiar and understandable.)

In the interest of bringing greater stability to world commerce; in the interest of providing a major marketplace for those who have the financial ability and the desire to pit their judgment against the future; the Chicago Mercantile Exchange has established the International Monetary Market. As one of the largest and most innovative futures markets in the world, the CME is uniquely qualified to do so. Its brand new trading floor complex together with its world-wide electronic communications facilities make it, technologically, the most modern exchange in the world. Yet this technology is backed by more than fifty years of futures trading experience in the futures trading capital of the world.

The older order changeth. Bretton Woods is dead. The time has come for a new idea. The International Monetary Market is born.

Trading begins in mid-April, 1972 in Canadian dollars, Deutschemarks, Swiss francs, British pounds, Japanese yen, Italian lira and Mexican pesos. Interested parties may secure further information by writing to the address below.

EC Bankers Reach Accord In Margins

et Intervention on urrency Exchanges

By Clyde H. Farnsworth 3ASEL, April 10 (NYT).-The vernments of the Common wrket states are moving ahead itiously with plans to link ir currencies more tightly.

Their object is to create a new metary zone (and sometime er a single currency) to offset influence of the dollar and prove prospects for an eventual ropean federation or looser ifederation of states.

it a daylong meeting here, itral bankers of the Six at-opted to work out some of the thly complex mechanics in-yed in the first stage of the Mohawk, Allegheny Airlines to Unite

The Civil Aeronautics Board has approved the merger of Mohawk Airlines into Allegheny Airlines in view of Mohawk's extremely critical financial position. The decision converts Allegheny into the sixth largest among the 20 domestic U.S. airlines. The merger agreement calls for a conversion ratio of one share of Allegheny common and a warrant to buy an additional two-thirds of a share at $18 a share, for each 4 1/4 Mohawk shares. Holders of Mohawk's $28 million of subordinated debt plan to exchange there obligations for three series of convertible pre-

Geneen Highest Paid U.S. Executive Last year was a profitable one for top corporate officials. Harold S. Geneen, chairman and president of International Telephone & Telegraph (FTT), was paid $812,494 in salary and bonus in 1971, up from $766.755 in 1970, making him the highest paid executive in the nation. According to a proxy statement, Mr. Geneen also exercised options to purchase 33.334 shares of ITT stock from Jan. 1, 1971, to March 10, 1972. The total option price paid was $1,125 million compared with the total market value of the shares at the time of the purchases of $1.920 million.

Ford Officers' Salaries Rose

Ford Motor's proxy statement discloses that the total salary and bonus of chairman Henry Ford 2d rose 37.8 percent last year and the total pay of its president, Lee A. Tacocca, jumped 48.3 percent. In response to a question, Ford maintained that none of its pay boosts violated the wage freeze or the pay guidelines of Phase 2. Under Pay Board guidelines, established bonus of companies are generally allowed to operate subject to certain limits based on payouts in other recent years. Moreover, the guidelines do not apply to any individual's pay but to the pay of specific groups of employees. Mr. Ford received a total remuneration of $689,000, including $264,000 in salary and $425,000 in bonuses Mr. Iacocca received a boost of $220,000 to a total of $675,000. The company's earnings in 1971 amounted to $857 million, up 27 percent over 1970.

Salaries Rise on Wall Street

Salaries also increased at Merrill Lynch, Plerce, Fenner & Smith. Donald T. Regan, chairman, got a salary boost of $84,100 to $293,100 in 1971. President Ned B. Bali got a $108,000 raise last

Mediterranean Set for Oil Development

MADRID, April 10 (AP-DJ).— The petroleum industry's appetite for new resource fields has been whetted recently by discoveries offshore from Spain and Tunisla. and only the concentration of all available deep sea rigs in the North Sea is bolding up full-scale exploration of the Mediterranean.

The governments of France, Italy and Spain are impatient to have the oil concerns get busy, in hopes of finding significant hydrocarbon resources beneath their own territorial waters.

Operators who have struck off or gas to date in the Mediterranean include subsidiaries of Royal Dutch Shell, Amoco, Phillips Petroleum, Pétroles d'Aquitaine and those of two state-owned concerns. Italy's ENI and Franca's ELF-Erap. In the subsequent rush for permits, European subsidiaries of Standard Off of New Jersey, Atlantic Richfield, Conoco, American Petrofina, Texas Pacific Oil and Ranger Oil are jostling with British Petroleum (BP) and Cle Française des Pétroles (CFP) for Mediterrancen acreage sential for exploring—and exploiting—the Mediterranean because, unlike the relatively shallow North Sea, it sinks to formidable depths. However, generally fine Mediterranean weather and the short duration of storms mean that floating or semi-submersible platforms could operate safely well out from the continental shelf.

A striking example of the technical advances being made to explore the sen is the 15,000-ton Pelican, 2 French vessel that can drill the seabed 15,000 feet below the surface. Because it has seven propellers that hold it to a spot determined by acoustic signals broadcast from emitters dropped to the bottom of the sea, it can stay in one position, without an anchor, even in 50-mile-an-hour winds and 20-foot waves. This fall it will start exploring a permit nfishere from Corsica that is held jointly by Esso Standard, Esso's French unit, CFP and Pe-troles d'Aquitaine. east of Corsica, where seismic surveys are in progress.

Though technicians are keeping up with the oil industry's demands, bureaucrats are not. For instance, the littoral powers have not yet agreed on delimitation or the deep waters of the Mediterranean. To judge by the legal bettles in the North Sea, fixing national boundaries in the sea around Corsics and Sardinia could take lengthy negotiations. Closer to shore, activity is limited only by the availability of oil rigs. There is plenty afoot.

In the Gulf of the Lion (the bay between the Spanish frontier and Marseilles), a partner-ship of CFP and the BP group is drilling in 300 feet of water and permits in seaward parts of this gulf, in depths down to 12,-000 feet, have been applied for by Esso Standard, Shell Francaise and CFP.

Further east from Marseilles. off the Côte d'Azur, salt domes like those in the Gulf of Mexico have been spotted.

In the Tyrrhenian Sea, which laps Italy's western shores, the

VW Proposes To Halve Its 1971 Dividend

WOLFSBURG, West Germany, April 10 (AP-DJ).-Volkswagenwerk AG announced today that it proposes a dividend of 4.50 deutsche marks for 1971 compared with the 9.25 DM paid in 1970.

The proposal will be decided on at the annual meeting on July 7, VW said. The brief statement did not mention 1971 profit, but top VW officials have repeatedly stated that net income will be drastically reduced from the 190-million DM after-tax profit reported for 1970

According to these previous statements, the domestic automaking operations of Europe's largest motor company failed to make any profit, and distributable income would come from "other operations" and from foreign subsidiaries.

On the other side of Italy, in the Adriatic, enough gas has already been found to compensate for the depletion of the Po valley gas fields. The latest find was made by ELF-Erap at San Ste-fano; it has been producing 17 million cubic feet of gas a day since Christmas. Yugoslavia has a claim to half the Adriatic, and the Belgrade government is wooing oil firms that have the necessary offshore skill. Drilling has begun off the north of Yugoslavia, but it is the coast off Montenegro that attracts the oilmen most.

Further south, in the Ionian Sea, AGIP has made several gas finds. The Greek government has awarded eight concessions in the Ionian and Aegean Seas.
Drilling off Turkey and Israel

data has been unsuccessful, and nothing appears to bave been done in Syrian and Lebanese waters. Gas bas been found by Amoco and Phillips off Egypt, near Aboukir. Petroles d'Aquitaine has turned up oll off Libya. Zuara, but in view of the colonels' present mood, the oil companies are not very interested in Libyan waters.

In the passage between Sicily and Malta, interest has been aroused by the discovery that the Gela ollfield, in Sicil; continues underwater. Sheli and AGIP, which bave found a well that gives 10,000 barrels of heavy oil a day, have taken rights on several million acres in the same region. In the Maltese part, three Ilcenses are bold by Shell, Petroles d'Aquitaine and a Ca-nadlan group beaded by Home Oil as operator. Drilling has begun from two rigs.

To the west, in Tunisis's Guis of Gabes, Petroles d'Aquitaine. CFP and ELF-Erap have found several small oilfields. Geologists hold out hopes of locating the undersea continuation of the fabulous Libyan ollfields. The coasts of Algeria and Morocco, in contrast, are viewed as unpromising. It is in Spanish waters where the most important find have been made. At America and Oastellon, some 14 miles out from the dalts of the Ebro River, Shell Espana, acting as operator for groups including Coorrex and two Spanish government con-cerns, bas found oil in commercial quantities. A well-bead jacket now is being put in place at Amposta, and production will begin in October.

Profits Drop 52% in Year At Alusuisse Hitachi Net Falls 33%,

Sales Offin Fiscal Year

ZURICH, April 10 (AP-DJ) .-Swiss Aluminium Ltd. (Alusuisse) consolidated net profit fell a sharp 52 percent last year as a result of world overproduction of aluminum and dwindling demand in Europe, the company reported Alusuisse, which is one of the world's big three aluminum groups, said world production rose 11 per-cent last year from 1970, while European consumption declined more than 3 percent.

Net profits at Alusuisse fell to 62 million francs from 129.3 mil-lion in 1970, the 1971 report said. Total sales dropped 112 percent, to 2.051 billion francs from the previous 2.310 billion francs.

The company proposed a dividend of 12 percent compared with 18 percent in 1970.

[Alusuisse is considering a Eurodollar loan of between $25 million and 860 million, chairman Emanuel Meyer told a press conference in Zurich today, according to a Reuters report. The company is also reportedly planning a Swiss franc loan, probably Hitachi Reports Profit Drop FRANKFURT. April 10 (AP-DJ).—Net consalidated profit of Hitachi dropped 33 percent to about 34 billion yen (about $110.4 million; in the fiscal year ended March 31 from the preceding year, Hiroshi Homma, executive vice-president and member of the board of directors of the Japanese electrical concern, reported here

He said sales in the fiscal year amounted to about 1,200 billion yen (ebout $3.9 billion), compared with 1,340 billion yen in the preceding year. An order inflow of about 1,300 billion yen in the last fiscal year was down 6 percent in the Hitachi group, he reported. He disclosed these preliminary results at a press conference pre-ceding the official listing of Hitachi shares at the Frankfurt stock

Norsk Sees Lower Net LONDON, April 10 (AP-DJ).— Norsk Hydro, the largest chemical group in Scandinavia, expects 'considerably' reduced profits for the year ending June 30, Johan Holte, president, said today.

The previous year, Norsk Hydro, which holds a major stake in the development of North Sea oil and gas, earoed 20.9 million kroner ($3.2 million).

"We are now in a terrible cost crisis—with wages and other costs going up sharply all over Europeand this situation must be reflected in lower current year earnings," he explained.

In February, the compeny re-ported that pre-tax profit for the six-month period ended Dec. 31 declined to 10 million kroner from 48 million kroper in the like yearearlier period.

In addition to its chemicals, the Oslo-based company is an aluminum and magnesium fabricator and a producer of hydroelectric power. It is also active in oil and gas exploitation.

Mr. Holte was in London to announce that Norsk Hydro had applied for a listing of its common shares on the London Stock Exchange. Dealings are expected to start April 13. Norsk Hydro shares are listed on the Oslo and Paris exchanges.

Wages in U.S. Up 3% Since Freeze

WASHINGTON, April 10 (NYT).-Wages across the economy, union and nonunion, have risen 3 percent in the four months since the freeze, to an annual rate of 9 percent, the Labor Department reported this weekend.
In this period of a post-freeze "Lulge" of both wages and prices. the report showed, workers' incomes bave gone up faster than prices. The rules of Phase 2 controls have permitted numerous Increases in this period, and some prices are not controlled at all. The new figures tended to refute the assertion of organized labor that wages have been effectively kept down while prices have not. However, many months of official statistics will be necessary to determine the basic trends of both wages and prices.

Selling Pressure Hits Prices on Big Board By Vartanig G. Vartan NEW YORK, April 10 (NYT). prices finished mixed in slower trading.

-New York Stock Exchange prices, displaying some big changes in individual issues, ran into a bit of selling late today on the heels of last week's sharp advance.

A burst of profit-taking sent the Dow Jones industrial average lower by 4.52 to finish at 958.08. Last week, this blue-chip barometer rose to its best level in nearly three years, bulling ahead with a net gain of nearly 22,

Du Pont symbolized the profittaking forces in the market to-It posted a 1972 high at 176 1/2 but ended at 174 1 4, down 3.4, after management estimated March-quarter profits at around $2 a share, up from $1.51 one year ago. Some analysts, noting that the new carnings hit pretty much on target with brokerageindustry estimates, said that traders took profits on the news. The notable price movers in-cluded Superior Oil, up 23 to 263, and Eausch & Lomb, down 13 1/2 to 109, making It the biggest percentage loser.

Close followers of Superior Oll, en independent producer of oil and gas, attributed its strength to reports Friday that the Federal Power Commission would relax price controls over new sales of netural gas ta interstate pipelines. Aztec Oil & Gas essed 3/8 to 19 7,8 after running shead 2 1/8 on Friday as another apparent beneficiary of the FPC move. As for wide-swinging Bausch & Lemb, the product that turned this optical goods producer into a glamour stock—its Soflens, or soft contact lens-was the reason behind today's sharp loss. The May issue of Consumer

Reports advised potential users of new centact lenses to adopt "a walt-and-see attitude ... at this time." The publication urged this cautious approach "perticularly [for] those who wear hard lenses successfully." Profit-taking produced these losses in recently strong issues: Tropicana, down 2 1.5, Itek, off 3 3.4, Heneywell, down 10 3 4. and Blue Bell down 2 1-4. Blue Belt had dropped 2 3 4 on Friday after disclosing flat earnings for the March quarter.

Also on the down side was H & R Block. It lost 1 7 8 to 21 1.2. Among the companies whose stocks were helped by favorable earnings reports were Weatherbead. It rose I to I4 as the onrual meeting was told that firstquarter net rose to 28 ceots a share from 14 cents a year ago. b Weatherhead also raised its cash dividend and predicted bigher

Rosy View Taken On U.S. Economy By Buying Agents

NEW YORK, April 10 (Reuters).-Growing optimism may be the most encouraging note in the March survey of purchasing ex-ecutives, according to the National Association of Purchasing Man-It said 73 percent of those surveyed were "optimistic" or "satisfled" against 59 percent just last September, while only 27 percent were "concerned" or "worried" indicating a "better feeling about the future than et any time in the past nine years." It said the executives report new order books are generally better io March than in February, production levels are improved, inventories expanding and the employment picture is somewhat

However, the association adds, prices continue to advance at a brisk pace and forward commitments are being made within a slightly shorter time frame. It noted that metals and other basic Items dominate the list of higher priced items, while the sbortage list is a little longer than it has been for many months, and includes zine, coal, natural gas, soda ash and caustic soda.

If you're puzzled about exactly what Gulf+Western does, we'll be happy to spell it out.

and offices in 49 countries employ over 70,000 people-it's understandably hard to give a quick overview of your total operations.

But we think this "diagram" may help. It shows the five major fields of Gulf + Western's Stage II activity. Within those five areas are some well-known corporate names. Under SERVICES, for example, there's Associates Corporation of North America-active in financing and a wide range of insurance programs. Under CONSUMER GOODS, you're prohably familiar. with our Consolidated > many of its leading hrands: Muriel, El Producto, and Dutch Masters cigars. Under LEISURE, onr G+Woperations include both. Paramount Pictures and Famous Music Corporation. However, our list of familiar names only goes so far. Unless you need forgings, pipe fittings, traffic safety systems, precision metal parts, or carloads of other things from automobile parts to zinc to components for home appliances-you might not know G+W's subsidiaries.

Cigar subsidiary and

But think of this. Some 50% of our manufacturing operations go toward helping other companies whose products affect your life. The sugar in your coffee and the boxes your cereal is packaged in may have come from subsidiaries in both G+W's CONSUMER and NATURAL RESOURCES areas. The cans you see in your kitchen cuphoard could have been shaped hy presses from a G+W company in the INDUSTRIAL MARKETS area.

We look at it this way. G+W's Stage I was our period for developing a solid hase of assets; now, in Stage II, we're serving the growing needs of five consumer and industrial areas. Today, either through our own products, or by helping other companies make their products, Gulf+Western is making life easier for millions. And more rewarding for its more than 100,000 stockholders.

Learn more about G+W. For 1971 Annual Report, write: Dept. of Investor Relations, Gulf + Western Industries, Inc., 1 Gulf + Western Plaza, N.Y., N.Y. 10023 U.S.A.

hearts and clubs and set him up for an endplay. Two high hearts were followed by a third one, and it was all over. East took his heart queen and had to lead away from the club ace, allow-point South was in control.

The fact that a player has opened in third or fourth position, and therefore is not obliged to rebid, can influence the development of the auction.

On the diagramed deal South passed originally and then responded one spade to his partner's one-club open. When North raised to two spades, South's jump was only a mild gamble—his partner could have passed on the second round, and would have done so with a minimum opening. His raise to two spades therefore gave South the encouragement he needed to bid game. West led the diamond king, and the declarer contemplated the dummy without enthusiasm. He

West could have beaten the contract if he had shifted to a low club at second trick, but that was a hard defense to find. More-A AK5 over, this lead would have helped South if he had held the club jack instead of the ten.

MARY BARNES

Two Accounts of a Journey Through Madness By Mary Barnes and Joseph Berke. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. 351 pp. Mustrated. $7.50.

1923—"feet first, without fingernalls"—into an "abnormally nice" family in Portsmouth, Hampshire, England. Whenever tension threatened to crack the Barnes's outer serenity, Father's hand would make a pushingdown movement; Mother would retire with a headache; and all would remain outwardly calm. More children were born: a brother, Peter, when Mary was about 2; two more daughterseach birth a punishing trial for Mother. Meanwhile, Mary had difficulty learning to speak, developed the habit of playing with her excrement did poorly in school was extremely clumsy with her hands, fought with Peter. Still, for a while the family remained calm and close nice. Peter was the first to crack. In his early teens, he dropped out of school, retired to his room, had to be placed in a mental hospital, and was pronounced a hopeless victim of dementia practor. ("We slew Peter to preserve our shells,"

Mary recalls.)
In the meantime, Mary had taken up nurse's training, entered the army, undergone a conversion to Catholicism, entered a convent. But nothing would relieve her from her growing sense of anxiety and frequent feelings of being dead. She hated nursing, could not fit into routines. She suffered a breakdown, spent time in a violent ward, recovered superficially. Mary began to look for psychotherapeutic help. She read the available literature and even wrote to Anna Freud, who advised her to "leave well enough alone." Eventually, through a friend, Mary reached "Romie"— R. D. Laing, the anti-Establishment psychiatrist from Glasgow. After an agonizing wait of almost two years, she was admitted in 1965 into Laing's experimental community at Kingsley Hall in the East End of London, Within a matter of weeks, she had re-tired to her bed. There she lay naked in her excrement, refusing to talk or eat, "going down" to prenatal infancy, a "hopelessly" regressed schizophrenic caught in the spiderweb of her emotional ontogeny. This much of Mary's extraordinary and harrowing story we learn from her own comparatively coherent retrospective account, which takes up the first quarter of this book. Then, following a brief chapter by Joseph Berke, a young American doctor who had come to Kingsley Hall in rebellion against what he saw as the restrictive, oppressive and manip-ulative character of the American psychiatric profession, we plunge into Mary's account of her "Down" years. Down" years.

It is a travelogue through a psychic Walpurgis night, fragmentary, onrushing, claustrophobic: filled with run-on sentences. distorted incidents, puzzling references. As far as we can tell, Mary is almost alone at Kingsley Hall the other residents mere shadows. Strangely, her life seems to consist of nothing but sucking, grunting, playing "sharks" and "crocodiles" with a large presence

MARY BARNES was born in called Joe, wetting, defecating going frozen, and feeling bad She covers the walls and herself with her excrement; Joe loves her nonetheless; cleans her up in a warm bath. Joe tells her, "Don't be a pest"; he "turns round with his hand. Flaps it across my face and carries on Always there is kind 'Ronnie' loving, bearlike Joe, herself, and "TT" (the thing inside her that makes her go dead). Then gradually, after years light begins to break through Instead of playing with her feces Mary begins to paint. She start to distinguish herself from the Other: People begin to take shape around her; she sees that some occurrences are not her fault and not intended to punish her. She grasps the idea that "IT" is her anger and jealousy, too powerful to be acknowledged directly. He paintings improve, and begin to attract the world's attention.

"Then struggling free, like a fish getting back into the sea from a net, I swam, gradually, as if I had never been caught .. The sight of the past was falling away. The sea was free."

Still, it is not until Joe Berke tells his version of Mary's ordest that we experience the shork the humor, and the relief of perspective. We learn that Mary was not alone in Kingsley Hall but surrounded by a lively community that found her extremely trying. We learn how Kingsley Hall functioned during those years. We learn why Joe growled and played "sharks" with Mary. It was to show her that her anger would not destroy him We see how very unlovable Mary could be: how Joe almost walked out on her when he found her covered with her excrement. We learn that the "flap" of his hand across her face was in fact s violent punch that nearly broke her nose, not to mention Joe's faith in the experiment. We learn what lay at the bottom of Mary's "hopeless" condition. We witness the "untying of the knot."

Perhaps it is clear by now what an extremely rich book this is-how it combines a personal drama of redemption from "madness" with a profound revolutionary statement on how a free community of souls can interact for the good of its individuals; how it sets forth the theories of the charismatic E. D. Laing-without reducing them to sterile syllogisms announcing the death of the family; and how it drama-tizes what writers like Michel Foucault and Thomas Szasz have been trying to tell us about the way society makes scapegoats of its "mad."

But what I found particularly moving is the faith the book expresses in the resiliency of the human spirit: that no matterhow damaged the soul, there remains a part of it that always grows toward wholeness like a heliotrope seeking the sun; and that no behavior, however bizarre or seemingly empty it may seem, is without order and meaning, or beyond the reach of love.

Miller said he was hopeful that the dispute could be ended. But when asked if today's bargaining discussions brought settlement closer, he replied, "I can't say that Gaherin also said he was "al-ways hopeful" of ending any labor dispute and added: "I think Mr. Counts's involvement has been helpful and I'm glad he is taking an interest in this case." "At issue is the players' request for hinding arbitration on a technical question concerning their pension fund. They want surplus money already in the fund to be used to raise retirement benefits. The owners oppose that use of the money and have said they consider the suggestion of arbitration "offensive."

Miller expressed disappointment that the mediation meeting had not "made the kind of substantive agreement that leads to a Gaherin said he thought the dispute would be "soluble with the assistance of Mr. Counts." Counts, in summarizing the situation, said: "As of this mo-

Big Man, Little Man

WASHINGTON.—There are two make the big guys pay what they important people that all really should." presidential candidates must deal with if they ever hope to get any votes.

There is the hig man and the little man. The hig man is the candidate's source of funds, and the little man is the candidate's source of discontent. Nobody, including Richard Nixon, cen win in November unless he makes peace with both of them.

The president Buchwald

of a large corporation called in his public relations vice-president the other day and said in a fury, "What the heck is going on here? We gave this guy $50,000 and he's attacking hig business!"

"There's nothing to worry about, chief. He has to attack hig business to placate the little guy, who is fed up with high taxes, high prices, and bureau-cratic hungling. The little guy feels he has no control of his destiny."

strongly about the little guy, why does he come to the oig guy for political campaign contributions?

"V?ell if our man feels that

"Because, chief, he needs the money to buy television time to attack us."

"That's just dandy. But if he feels that way, why should we give him any contribution?" "Because, chief, we have a lot to gain by lt." "Why do we have a lot to gain, damn it?"

"Because, if the hig guy doesn't give to the presidential candidate, the candidate won't he indebted to us if he wins the election. If he isn't indebted to us, he might well carry out the promises he made to the little

"It sounds prerty complicated to me. Look at this in the newspaper. Our candidate says the first thing he will do, if elected, is close all the tax loopholes and

"Exactly. If he didn't say anything about tax reform, he wouldn't have a Chinaman's chance of winning the election. We don't want to give $50,000 to a guy who is a sure loser."

"Then he says he's going to make sure the large corporations are penalized for polluting the air and the water."

"The little guy digs that, chief. He likes to believe the big guy is destroying the country."

"Weil, why don't you have our candidate tell the little guy if we didn't pollute, he wouldn't have a job?

"You don't bring that up during a presidential election campaign. Once our man is in, then be can say it.

"Chief, I know it's not much fun to see a candidate you gave $50,000 to take you over the coals, but this is politics. The little guy still has the votes, and in order for the big guy to star in business you have to be the heavy. Now I spoke to our candidate the other day, and he says next week be's going to aitack the conglomerates and propose they he broken up."

"But we're a conglomerate!" "That's why he told me. He says he could use $25,000 more to make sure the attack gets the widest distribution,"

"I'm not going to give $25.000 to someone who wants to break up my company." "We have to, chief. The surveys show that the little guy fears conglomerates almost as much as busing, If our candidate's attack on conglomerates works, he could pick up 100 delegates. I think we ought to give him the $25,000 to protect our $50,000," doesn't think breaking up conglooterates is enough?" "Then our candidate is going

White Geese on Patrol At California Plant

By David Larsen

PARAMOUNT, Calif.—A truck equipment plant here has installed a new hurglar alarm system; four white goese. In the six weeks they have been on the job, there has not been a single theft.

SSP Truck Equipment, Inc., had been harassed by nighttime hurgiaries. On its 10 acres are hundreds of trucks whose batteries had been an inviting target.

"Then I heard that a distillery in Scotland was using geese to guard Scotch while it was aging," said Robert Wilhelmsen, vice-president of SSP.

The company bought two pairs of the birds. If anybody ventures into the yard at night, the geese begin honking. "We made a deal with the neighbors," Mr. Wilhelmsen said. "If they hear the geese, they call the sheriff."

The birds, named George, Roste, Eddie and Cindy, have free run of the grounds and are very popular with the workers, some of whom bring them lettuce. The cost to the company is the rolled barley that the geese are fed.

The use of the sleuth goose goes back to the ancient Egyptians and Romans, who kept them as sentries. In Vietnam, geese have been used as an early warning system at a bridge outside Saigon.

Pilgrimages to Prague in Quest of Youth and Beauty

By Osgood Caruthers

PRAGUE.—In their eternal quest for youth and beauty, women from the far corners of the earth have made the pilgrimage to Prague's Cosmetics Institute to smooth out face wrinkles, get rid of bags under the eyes or change the shape of their noses or ears or simply revel in a heauty treatment that costs them about one-tenth the price they would have to pay in New York, London or Paris.

Plastic surgeons from other parts of the world give top marks to the high standard of professional work done bere.

"We do not consider plastic surgery and the cosmetic treatment of the face and body a mere luxury to appease the vanity of the rich." said the institute's youthful looking chief plastic surgeon. Dr. Karel Fahoun, "In our own socialist society here in Czechoslovakia we find more and more working women earning enough and saving enough to come to us. Each year more and more and more of them come from the farms and the factories -young girls and some men too with serious defects that have

burt them psychologically as well

health service we charge our own citizens a minimum fee. Foreign women from the canltalist world must pay double this fee and still it is very inexpensive."

Low cost for good quality work is not the only unusual thing about the institute, which oc-cupies two floors of a large turnof-the-century bullding in the center of downtown Prague, Its director, Dr. Otakar Fertek, believes that the institute is the only one of its kind in the world. Complex

It is a whole complex for the care and treatment of both normal beauty requirements and the most serious beauty problems. It is completely coordinated with medical control and supervision. Even the woman who comes in for a simple facial massage or a shampoo and set or a pedicure must first undergo a rather thorough medical test in which the team of dermatologists and other specialists determine what kind of creams and cleansers should be used. Those who come in for a face lift or a nose bob or the removal of unsightly hair and have been recently developed as socially. Since we are part of must undergo a more thorough made in the West under licenses the state-controlled national checkup that includes blood and bought from Czechoslovakia. It checkup that includes blood and urine analysis, electrocardiogram and examinations by gynecologists and other specialists.

The institute has also developed its own line of cosmetics-not only for therapy hut also all kinds of regular creams, ointments, soaps and shampoos, One can buy these creams in a special retail store on the ground floor of the building housing the institute, A tube of the institute's Exclusive Mink Cream and a two-ounce bottle of Exclusive Mink Oil—both containing oli from the fat of the animal-each costs the equivalent of about $3. Other cleansers, softeners, wrinkle removers and special mixtures run from less than a dollar to up to $2 maximum.

Mondays

A visitor to the institute on a Monday morning—the one week-day that no plastic surgery is done-found a long line of women interspersed with a handful of men walting for their various treatments. In the eye clinic a young man was being fitted with the new soft contact lenses that other blemishes, including tattoos, here in Prague and are now being bought from Czechoslovakia. It was floor-scrubbing and cleaning day in the operating room where Dr. Fahoun or the woman assistant surgeon perform their plastic surgery operations the other four working days of tha A complete face lift here costs a citizen of Czechoslovakia, 2,500 crowns, which is about the average monthly pay of an ordinary worker. For a foreigner the price is double, which at the legal rate of 15 crowns to the dollar makes it only a little more than $300. The face lift is considered the most difficult job. Plastic surgery on the eyelids, both upper and lower, costs about the equivalent of $400 because of the delicacy of the operation. The reshaping of a nose costs about $300 and the reshaping of the ears about $200.

"We have not created this institute for the sake of commercialism of human vanity alone," Dr. Fertek said, "We believe that cosmetology bas hecome a true and necessary science that helps to contribute to the happiness and well-heing of people.

couldn't afford $15."

• Richard Kleindienst astonished everyone within hearing distance at the French Embassy the other night with the jovial disclosure that Jack Anderson is now his "favorite" columnist. "Before he started attacking me," said Kleindienst, "there were R lot of people in this country who didn't even know who I was."

 Hubert Humphrey's gregarious sister, Frances Howard, was so exuberantly underfoot in Wisconsin that some staffers were complaining. A California legislator who joined the entourage to make a list of do's and don'ts for the upcoming primary in his state wrote: "Give the candidate's sister something useful to do."
